(Table showing the performance of Egyptian sovereign sukuk on 05/06/2026)

Egypt's international sovereign sukuk prices continued to rise at the beginning of last week's trading, supported by a decline in the cost of insuring Egyptian sovereign debt during trading on (29/05/2026). The sovereign Credit Default Swap (CDS) spread fell to 2.95%, its lowest level since (11/02/2026)³. The monthly increase in the Egyptian banking sector's net foreign assets (NFA) during April 2026 also supported the performance of sovereign sukuk. NFA rose to EGP 1.229 trillion (equivalent to USD 22.9 billion), compared to EGP 1.166 trillion (equivalent to USD 21.33 billion) in March 2026, recording a monthly increase of 5.4%, according to the report released by the Central Bank of Egypt on Wednesday (03/06/2026)⁴.

By the end of last week's trading, the performance of Egypt's international sovereign sukuk was mixed. Prices of the (April 2029 maturity) sukuk declined, causing the yield to maturity to rise to 6.21% from 6.13% in the previous week. This followed the release of U.S. labor market data showing that the U.S. economy added 172,000 jobs in May 2026, while the unemployment rate remained unchanged at 4.3%, according to the Employment Situation Report released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics on (05/06/2026)⁵.

In contrast, prices of the (October 2032 maturity) sukuk increased slightly, resulting in a decline in the yield to maturity to 7.23% from 7.24% in the previous week, as shown in the table above.
