(Table showing the performance of Egyptian sovereign sukuk on 12/06/2026)

Egyptian international sovereign sukuk prices declined during most of the week's trading sessions, affected by the increase in the annual U.S. inflation rate (Consumer Price Index) to 4.2% in May 2026, according to the report released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics on Wednesday[3], (10/06/2026). This marked the highest inflation reading since April 2023, putting pressure on fixed-income instruments in both global and emerging markets, including Egyptian international sovereign sukuk.

However, sukuk prices rebounded by the end of the week, as illustrated in the table above. The price of the sukuk(Maturity on April 2029) increased from $100.63 on (05/06/2026) to $100.83 on (12/06/2026). Meanwhile, the price of sukuk (Maturity on October 2032) declined to $103.74 during the trading session on (08/06/2026) before gradually recovering to close at $ 104.16 on (12/06/2026).

This performance reflects an improvement in investor sentiment toward sukuk at the end of the week, supported by renewed demand for fixed-income instruments, which helped offset part of the losses recorded during the week.
