(Table showing the performance of Egyptian sovereign sukuk on 22/05/2026)

Egyptian international sovereign sukuk prices increased during May 21 and 22, 2026, following the release of the U.S. Federal Reserve's meeting minutes³, which indicated continued inflationary pressures and expectations that interest rates would remain elevated for a longer period. Although such expectations typically exert pressure on emerging market debt instruments, improved investor sentiment driven by the relative progress in U.S.-Iran negotiations and easing concerns over global oil supply disruptions helped support demand for Egyptian international sovereign sukuk, leading to higher prices during the final trading days of the past week.
